

MAXIMUM CITY: MUMBAI LOST AND FOUND

I have visited India many times and each time I am fascinated by its rich culture, with its many different religions and its enormous contrasts in which so many people live in medieval conditions alongside an increasingly large middle class. It would be impossible to find another country geographically and culturally so rich with as much chaos and confusion. I found all of these aspects concentrated in the city of Mumbai which for me perfectly illustrate all of India.

Germana Dini

Germana Dini

I was born in Florence, traveler and passionate photographer I love to call myself (with a good dose of optimism) "documentary photographer" because through my images I want to tell stories.
First workshop with Shobha.